SOUTH GIPPSLAND YACHT CLUB COMMODORE'S INVITATION

I am really excited to be able to invite and extend a very warm welcome to all sailors and visitors to join us at South Gippsland Yacht Club over the Australia Day Weekend in January 2015 to celebrate Inverloch's sailing and seaside heritage.

On 2 January 1893, when Inverloch was a small and isolated seaside community, an Inverloch Yacht Club conducted a race. Not long afterwards Regatta Days became regular celebrations. Activities included sailing, sculling, swimming, diving and sliding a barrel out over the water along a greasy pole.

By the 1920s this vital little town was attracting increasing numbers of holiday makers. Amongst them was Len Morris, who in 1928 launched his 11 foot sailing dinghy 'Olive', the basis of a class that became the Moth and later the International Moth Class.

This coming Regatta we are very fortunate to be celebrating with two well known sailors- Jessica Watson OAM, '2011 Young Australian of the Year' and Tom King OAM, Mirror World Champion and a 470 Olympic Gold Medallist. On Saturday evening Jessica, introduced by Tom, will give an inspirational presentation on her sailing adventures.

South Gippsland Yacht Club is a small regional club with a big heart so we would welcome you to spirit your impressive classic timber dinghy out of the garage or shed and head for Inverloch in South Gippsland for the Australia Day weekend in 2015.

I also welcome you and your family to join in the social program over the weekend.

It is a privilege to be able to work with yacht club members, our community partners the Lions and Rotary Clubs, Historical Society and sponsors who have committed support for the continuing success of the Regatta.

Don't leave your wooden boat sitting on the trailer too long. Morgan SA

INVERLOCH'S FIRST YACHT CLUB

by Bob Parry

So far the earliest known record of an Inverloch yacht club and yacht racing at Anderson Inlet was found in the Argus newspaper dated the 4th of January 1893. In this article, reprinted below, three boats were mentioned 'Annie' (a Melbourne yacht) owned by Mr. Ross Macartney and sailed by Mr. Robert Whaley, the 'Breeze' owned and sailed by Mr. S Laycock and the third yacht was the 'Tarwin Lass' she was sailed by Mr. Chamberlain and a local crew. Mr. J.N. Thompson was judge and timekeeper, Mr. George Beuly starter, and Mr. J. O' Shannasy handicapper.

Police Constable O' Shannasy was the earliest recorded policeman we have for Inverloch in the 1890s it is possible that he was the handicapper.

In 1892 Robert Whaley was the Secretary of the Inverloch mechanics' institute and in 1893 was granted a wine license. In March 1882 Ross Macartney entered his yacht 'Lily' in a race with the South Melbourne yacht club. He also raced at Albert Park Yacht Club. I have just found that my Great Grandfather John Parry J.P. and Ross Kenneth Macartney were both called as witnesses in the Royal Commission into railways and the Korumburra coalfields. Macartney said his occupation was speculator and he invested a lot of money in the coalfields. It would be surprising if Macartney did not buy a lot of land in Inverloch on speculation as Inverloch was to be the Newcastle of Victoria, the centre of the coalfields where coal could be shipped from a safe Harbour.

"YACHTING AT INVERLOCH"

A large gathering witnessed the regatta of the Inverloch Yacht Club on January 2, and interest was given to the proceedings by the presence of the Melbourne yacht 'Annie', now owned by Mr. Ross Macartney. She won the principal race by 6 min. 15 sec. She was remarkably well managed by Mr. Robert Whaley. The 'Tarwin Lass' received 18 min from the 'Annie', and came second, beaten by the time stated above. She was sailed by Mr. Chamberlain and a local crew, consequently was the favourite. She did remarkably well to come near to such a boat as the 'Annie'. The 'Breeze', owned and sailed by Mr. S. Laycock, unfortunately got fast on one of the many sand banks, which at low tide spoils this otherwise magnificent watering place. The course was from Inverloch pier round the west beacons, down to Mahrs landing and back, distance 10 miles. A good start took place at 10.53. The 'Annie' arrived at 12 hour. 33 min. 32sec., the 'Tarwin Lass' at 12h. 56 min. 17 sec. and the 'Breeze' about one hour later. She was captained by the oldest resident in the inlet, Mr. Laycock, who is reported to know every bank above the size of an egg within miles of the entrance. The day was grand. Perhaps the wind was a little too easterly to please the sailors. Everything passed off remarkably well, bar the little hitch to the 'Breeze'. It is intended to offer a few good prizes next year, and it is hoped that some of our well known will favour tills pleasant watering resort. Mr. J. N. Thompson was judge and timekeeper, Mr. George Beuly starter, and Mr. J. O'Shannasy handicapper."

The Australasian newspaper 23rd February 1895 had an article from a Gippsland farmer re his holiday trip. He travelled from Korumburra down to Inverloch, around south Gippsland and returned home to Korumburra.

"Captan Laycock provided a glorious camping ground but only two out of the party of 10 members decided to sleep in tents. The other eight of the party stayed the night at Messrs Dixon's (granted a wine license in 1893) and O'Brien's both good and reasonable hosts. The camping place is close by the seashore being an old garden girt about with pine and cypress of 25 years' growth and almost impervious to the wind. Captan Laycock is the local postmaster and general boss of the whole place though by no means a bossy person. He takes us out in his yacht, the 'Breeze', across to the fishing ground in the shelter of the sandspit beyond; and here our youngsters, much to their delight, haul up so many small flatheads from below. Captan Laycock descants on the evil done to the place by the netting which has ruined the fishing."

RACV REGATTA POSTER LAUNCH

On 22 November more than 70 people attended the Inverloch Classic Wooden Dinghy Poster Launch at RACV Inverloch Resort. The Inverloch Classic Wooden Dinghy Regatta Committee learnt a lot from the last Regatta and has spent 12 months planning and organising what we believe will be a super event.

Boat and bathing costume displays and poster launch at RACV Resort Inverloch. In front of the posters are Wayne Smith Regatta Coordinator, Allan Driver Commodore, Cr Jordan Crugnale Deputy Major and Marion Chapman Artist.

The dinghies on display at RACV were Heron, VJ, Moth and McGregor sailing Canoe. Also displayed was Louise Moran's collection of 1950s women's bathing costumes, still with labels, found some years ago in the ceiling of one of Inverloch's early shops. The initial four posters produced last year for the Regattas were displayed as well as the two unveiled new posters. Enlarged photos of Regatta Ambassador Jessica Watson OAM and Regatta Patron Tom King OAM were displayed at the entrance to the function room.

Commodore Allan Driver spoke of the Regatta Days of the past and outlined the aims and purpose of the SGYC highlighting the family friendly nature of the club and its focus on introducing young people to sailing and helping them to develop their skills whether it be just for fun or for competition. He also went through the number of club people who had excelled in sailing competition. Allan Thanked the RACV Inverloch Resort for its continued support. Wayne Smith, spokesperson for the committee, ran through the work of the committee and Lions Club's Neil Everitt and Rotary Club's Pat Barry talked of their clubs involvement in putting the event together. Eulalie Brewster from the Inverloch Historical Society gave a thoroughly entertaining talk on holidaying at the seaside in Inverloch. Cr Jordan Crugnale Bass Shire Councillor and Deputy Major congratulated the committee for bringing together so many people from the wider community. Cr Crugnale and young sailors then unveiled Marion Chapman's posters for the Regatta.

Dom Brusamarello representing the Inverloch Tourism Group commended the Committee on the work they had done to plan and organise this Regatta. Dom also mentioned the growing interest in creating an Inverloch Museum-something the Historical Society is very aware of and its need has become increasing apparent to the Regatta Committee.

VICTORIA'S FIRST OFF-THE-BEACH DINGHY?

by Tony Siddons – owner of 'Lil Bill II', a classic wooden 16 foot Skiff.

Many years ago, as a child sailing an assortment of dinghies during the 1970s, I became intrigued by the older dinghy classes I watched from beach to beach and wondered about their origins: and what did the original Australian sailing dinghies look like? And did any of these racing dinghies still exist?

In an effort to find answers to these questions I set out on a quest of exploration over many year where I met many people from the four corners of Australia involved in dinghy sailing as former sailors, boat builders or yacht designers.

Over time having met so many delightful people and shared many stories I began to realise that Australian sailing dinghies were more often than not born as a result of the environment and the emerging Australia seaside lifestyle. In many ways these early colonial and early 20th century dinghies are icons of the period and of the lifestyles that shaped this country.

One particular class of note is the largely forgotten Williamstown Punt. Whilst the class was an early 20th century invention, its origins can be traced back to the mid-19th century where it was said that punts were used as a means to cross the swamp lands of Hobson's Bay for hunting wild duck. At some point, the game hunters, tired of polling their way across the marshes, decided a far easier, albeit less secure means of propulsion would be sail. This is but one of many stories where the sailing dingy can rightfully be seen as an icon, or an artefact, that tells us much about what we did and how we settled by the seaside as modern Australians.

"A Splash from the past" The Williamstown Punt Club

The Punt Club was purely a Williamstown development which commenced in 1913 when two boys named Charles Bush and George Walker constructed a flat bottomed poling punt, in which to fish for eels along the strand. Later this punt was covered in with knocked down kerosene case slats and fitted with a calico sail.

The Punt Club was formed the next year with 6 punts, and its meetings were conducted at Parson's Boat

Paddles were used on the punts as rudders until August, 1914, when the practice was discontinued.

The sail area was set at 70 square feet, all punts being double ended and no bowsprits or jib booms were rigged.

The club moved to the Marine Underwriters shed, now (the Scout Boatshed) in 1918, two years later their new club house began construction, with twenty punts being on the register.

This building was officially opened by Baron Foster, the Governor General of Australia, on November 5th, 1921. This small club went on to become the Williamstown Sailing Club.

The punt club held many fine regattas off Williamstown and pictured opposite is 'Thetis' owned by Mr. B. Gibson, the father of Cliff Gibson, the photo was taken in 1914.

The Seaworks museum are currently investigating the possibility of making a replica punt or having a model done to showcase these unique vessels that played such an important part in Williamstown's rich maritime history.

SEASIDE ACTIVITIES

'The Duke'
December this year brings the 100 Anniversary of Duke Kahanamoku surfing in Australia.

The Duke took to the surf at Freshwater Beach on a carved solid piece of Sugar Pine in front of a large audience.

While he was not the first person to ride a Hawaiian surfboard in Australia his very public appearance was widely publicised and help launch surfing as a seaside activity in Australia. The rest, as they say, is history.
